

The Rupert Barneby Award of The New York Botanical Garden

Contributed by aneely on Sep 30, 2019 - 06:52 PM

The Rupert Barneby Award, named in honor of the late NYBG scientist and renowned legume expert, consists of US$2000 granted annually to assist researchers to visit The New York Botanical Garden to study the rich herbarium collection of Leguminosae. Proposal deadline is December 30, 2019.

The Rupert Barneby Award of The New York Botanical Garden

The Rupert Barneby Award, named in honor of the late NYBG scientist and renowned legume expert, consists of US$2000 granted annually to assist researchers to visit The New York Botanical Garden to study the rich herbarium collection of Leguminosae. Graduate students and professionals with research in systematics and/or legume diversity are given special consideration. Projects that will result in the improvement of the collection are desirable. Anyone interested in applying for the award should submit their: 1) curriculum vitae; 2) a proposal describing for which the award is sought; 3) contact information for two individuals who can vouch for the qualifications of the applicant. The proposal should address specifically the activities to be performed at NYBG and should consist of: 1) title page with proposal title, applicant's name, address, and mail address; 2) body of the proposal of no more than two pages, including justification, objectives, and research plan; 3) literature cited and budget. The application should be addressed to Dr. Benjamin M. Torke, Institute of Systematic Botany, The New York Botanical Garden, 200th St., Bronx, NY 10458-5126, USA, and received no later than December 30, 2019. Submission by e-mail is preferred (send to: torke@nybg.org). Announcement of the recipient will be made in January. Travel to NYBG should be planned for some period during 2020. Recipients are expected to give a presentation about their research.

Article pictures

NYBG